

CALL FOR PROGRAMME PROPOSALS

ANIMA is a grassroots arts organization that aims to create ecological alternatives and sustainable ways of life through permaculture, education and cultural exchange. The primary project of ANIMA is the visiting artist residency program ANIMA CASA RURAL ARTIST RESIDENCY (ACRAR). Situated in a rural setting outside of Guadalajara, Mexico, ACRAR is an active family farm and cultural laboratory that creates a holistic and creative space for artist, thinkers and activists through curated thematic residencies.

We are currently seeking proposals from curators and cultural organizers to program a two-week residency at Anima Casa Rural. We are looking for programmers that lead artists through an intentional experience while fostering creativity and artistic production. The program must be able to take place in the rural setting of ANIMA and should engage artists on a theme. Through conversations, dialogues, screenings and/or workshops the program should engage visiting artists practice while allowing them time for production. As well as leading the residency, curators will have a chance to present their program and curatorial practice on a panel discussion at the Escuela de Artes de la Secretaría de Cultura de Jalisco (depending on school's program and availability) in the city of Guadalajara. Programmers will be responsible for selecting and cultivating artists for their programmed, and are expected to assist ANIMA staff in promotion and marketing of their programmed residency.

As remuneration ANIMA will cover the costs of food (three meals a day) and lodging for the visiting curator, as well as Airport / Anima - Anima / Airport shuttle. The visiting curator is responsible for their own airfare, and Anima is happy to assist in helping them source funds with an Invitation Letter. Staff will be on site to prepare all meals and organize logistics. For more information on ANIMA and facilities please visit: animacasarural.com
